

The SIP School SSCA 'Elite' release 10/9/21

By Graham Francis

It's time to become 'Elite'

Birmingham, UK: Today, The SIP School announces the SSCA® 'Elite' program.

Certifications are important to both students and employers as they show that candidates have achieved a level of proficiency in the chosen subject, though it's important to understand that in the fast-moving world of IT, Cloud and Telecommunications, certifications need to adapt to stay relevant and this is what's just happened at The SIP School.

Graham Francis, CEO of The SIP School states that "The SSCA® SIP training program has been the defacto certification for SIP students around the world since its inception in 2008 and now it is time to acknowledge the differences in the training content and certification test between then and now. People taking the exam today will have to learn and understand much more than before and with the major content updates in March this year, which include a new module on STIR/SHAKEN, we decided it is time to acknowledge the extra effort required to pass the certification test. Henceforth, the SSCA® 'Elite' SIP training program becomes the new standard. People with existing SSCA® certifications can stand tall with what they have achieved and people attaining the SSCA® 'Elite' certification can now demonstrate their expertise in the extra content they needed to learn. Anyone who has passed their certification test from April 5th when new questions were added to the test automatically become SSCA® 'Elite' with their certificate updated to show this."

About the training

The SSCA® 'Elite' SIP training program covers everything you need to know about SIP, Trunking, Troubleshooting, Security etc. but now with an expanded focus on deploying a PBX onto AWS, putting an SBC on Azure, understanding how STIR/SHAKEN will help with the Robocalling problem as well as SIP in 4G/5G, UCaaS, CPaaS, this makes sure it remains the most complete and relevant program available across the world today.
